

Hotel Le K2 Chogori

Naming a hotel franchise after the world's second tallest mountain shows serious confidence and, for hotel chain K2, it's justified for its lodge in Val d'Isère. Sitting in one of the most popular ski zones in Europe, Le K2 Chogori has stiff competition but, with 21 immaculate suites featuring bespoke furniture and fittings by interior architect and founder Thomas Capezzone – as well as a spa, games room and gym – it's giving its neighbours a run for their money. There's a lot to enjoy here, but Restaurant l'Altiplano 2.0 is a stand-out, promising a continuation of the 'cuisine of summits' started by sister property K2 Altitude in Courchevel. Featuring Peruvian-inspired food, sharing plates take guests on a tasting tour of South America, all from the sophisticated comfort of a five-star hideaway in the French Alps.
